A new school year

Dear Friends and Supporters of INHO,

We are thrilled to share that our children have started school, from kindergarten all the way to the first year of university. This milestone fills us with joy and pride.

Out of 25 children, only Frandy has a dedicated sponsor, alongside Zazou, Michou, Sebby, and Williams (for food only), despite many promises. To make each child feel part of their journey, they crafted their own uniforms, a beautiful act of participation and dignity.

My greatest satisfaction? Seeing their proud, radiant faces on the way to school.

To those who have stood by us, thank you. Your support is a seed of peace.

I leave you with the words of Kailash Satyarthi:

“Dear Friends, we live in a world of abundance; yet hunger persists. We live in a world of information; yet ignorance persists. And where hunger and ignorance persist, peace cannot flourish... Peace is not the silence of guns, but the harmony of voices... Let us have peace; be compassionate, be human beings, be human.”

With gratitude,
Fr. Robert
